I have written before to express my criticism of the Israeli government's treatment of Palestinians but I feel the urgency to express that criticism again, this time to urge you to stop purchasing Hewlitt Packard merchandise. Hewlitt Packard provides Israel with equipment that is being used for surveillance and denial of rights to peaceful Palestinians.

Boycotts are effective and non-violent tactics for ending the use of corporate weapons that support apartheid. Cambridge joined the international boycott of Polaroid to help defeat apartheid in South Africa.
We need to again join with the growing international protest against corporations that allow their products to be used as instruments of oppression.

Please, let us show the world that Cambridge is a city that will only support technology that advances peace and justice.

Sincerely,

Sheli Wortis
